U.S. Constitution

- Federal government can make treaties with Tribes and foreign nations
- Suggests Native Americans are neither citizens or foreign nations
Elk v. Wilkins 1884

- Elk was an American Indian who gave up his tribal affiliation, moved to Omaha, spoke English, paid taxes, and then tried to vote.
- Elk had no claim to citizenship because he had never been naturalized as an American citizen through a treaty or statute. Even though he was born within the territorial jurisdiction of the United States, the 14th Amendment didn’t apply to Elk.
United States v. Wong Kim Ark

• Constitutional Question
  Could the government deny citizenship to persons born in the United States in violation of the Fourteenth Amendment?

• Supreme Court Decision
  No. The government could not deny citizenship to anyone born in the United States. To reach this conclusion, Justice Gray's tedious majority opinion managed to traverse much of western civilization.
